Dear Mr. Briggs:

I would like to express my support for the Florida's Showcase Green Envirohome project. There is a need, now more than ever, for the application of technologies that will preserve our precious water supply, while utilizing the unique potential for harnessing natural phenomena like hurricanes and floods.

Florida's Showcase Green Envirohome is exemplary of the latest green building and green living practices in Florida. The family behind this project lost everything in Hurricanes Frances, Jeanne and Katrina, including three homes deemed a complete and total loss. That they have decided to rebuild in such a responsible manner is inspiring, and their dedication should be rewarded with the resources necessary to continue their good work.

The project will enhance public awareness through an entire year of scheduled walkthroughs open to the public, while providing the public "proof of performance" monitored data on both energy and water consumption.

Any consideration you may give to this project will be greatly appreciated by my constituents, and by all Floridians who recognize the need for sustainability.

Sincerely,
